Kenny,

I wanted to drop you a note about a job where we used Primrose 327 Armor Plate Grease in our Reversing Tools on a job in Mexico where the down hole temperature was around 400 degrees. After a successful job, the tool was torn down for service, and to my surprise it was still full of clean grease. Normally, when we work in those harsh conditions, there is no grease left in the tools. This was really the first time I could see how Primrose performs.

If I have anymore experiences that I think you might be interested in, I'll let you know.

Sincerely,

Monte Siebrecht
